

UNC

CENTER FOR HEART
& VASCULAR CARE

2nd Annual Women's Heart
Symposium

May 17th, 2014
8:00am-4:00pm

William and Ida
Friday Center

Cardiovascular disease is the leading cause of death in women in the U.S. What you may not know is that women often present different symptoms of heart disease than men. With misdiagnosis common, it's especially important that women be aware of those differences and stay proactive in their own care.

The Women's Heart Program is proud to offer the Women's Heart Symposium.

2nd Annual Women's Heart Symposium

Featured Speakers

Linda Calhoun MD, F.A.C.C.

Our keynote speaker, Dr. Calhoun is a current Cardiologist at Cape Fear Heart Associates in Wilmington, NC and regional representative for the American College of Cardiology. Dr. Calhoun been practicing cardiology for the past 22 years. Her areas of clinical interest include vascular/ischemic heart disease, congestive heart failure, and heart disease in women. She will be presenting on "Women and Heart Disease Through the Ages".

Jennifer Schwartz, MD

Assistant Professor of Medicine from the Division of Cardiology at the UNC School of Medicine. She will give an overview of device therapy in women, which may include the use of cardiac electrophysiology, implantation of pacemakers, defibrillators, biventricular devices, and lead extractions.

Carla Sueta, MD, PhD, F.A.C.C.

Professor of Medicine and Medical Director for UNC Hospitals Heart Center at Meadowmont. She will discuss heart failure in women.

Paula Miller, MD

Clinical Associate Professor, Medical Director of Cardiac Rehabilitation, and Director of the Women's Heart Program at UNC School of Medicine. She will be hosting the event and giving an overview of heart disease in women.

To register, call 919-843-5206

This daylong event is aimed to increase awareness of women's heart disease. Participants will have their complete lipid panel, blood glucose, blood pressure, and BMI measured. Top specialists in their field from UNC will be on hand to present and educate, as well as, discuss testing results with attendees. Other topics include Cardiovascular disease and exercise by Betty Matteson, MA, ACSM-CES, Cardiovascular Disease and Nutrition by Judy Hinderliter, MPH, RD, LDN, Cardiovascular Disease and Stress by Janet Baradell, PhD, RN, and Stretching for Health by Jany McGee, MA, ACMS-HFS. Registration fee is $20.00, please call and reserve your spot today.